PREFACE.

Several years ago, while doing some other genealogical work, I made many inquiries regarding my maternal ancestry. The information thus gained I laid away until recently, when I began to think seriously of putting it into book form for the benefit of others.

I sent out a circular letter stating my thoughts on the subject, and in a short time enough subscriptions were secured to justify me in going on with the work.

I have made great efforts to get exact and detailed data, that this book might be complete and correct, and I felicitate myself that my efforts have been remarkably successful.

I did my best to induce subscribers to furnish pictures of themselves and families for the book, and I am sorry so few have entered the family picture gallery. There will be many regrets that no more pictures were put in.

There is not much of the book, but it contains the net results of my investigations along our ancestral and family lines. Those who read it will never realize the amount of time and labor required to collect and arrange for publication the material found in this little book. I hope it has not all been in vain, but that the little volume may be a source of interest, pleasure and profit for generations to come.

Fraternally,

NEWTON CHAMBERS STEELE.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., 1st Dec., 1901.

Introductory Remarks.

We American people have been very careless about genealogical matters until the last thirty to fifty years. People of all new countries are so occupied with the work of establishing government, commerce and agriculture that they do not have time to give much attention to history, especially genealogical history. Then there is the sense of independence coupled with a restive and anxious, yet hopeful, looking forward to the future, that tends to make the settlers and builders of a new country ignore, and almost scorn, the past.

In recent years there has developed in America great interest and activity in genealogy. People are asking, Who am I? and whence came I? All over our country individuals and families are engaged in tracing their ancestral lines back as far as possible.

Several years ago I began to hunt up the genealogy of my own family, which up to that time had been almost wholly neglected. I am what may be called a double Steele, both my father and mother having been Steeles. As to the name, some Steele families omit the final "e." The most of them use it. Sometimes the final "e" has been omitted for generations and then restored. The name is the same with or without it. It is said that the name Steele is of Scotch origin, and hence that all Steeles have Scotch blood in them. Of this I am not certain, but it is probably true.

Scotland and Ireland are so close together that for perhaps three thousand years there has been more or less intimacy between their people. There has been constant migrating from one country to the other. Inter-marriages have been numerous, and this has produced the so-called Scotch-Irish people of which we hear so much. However, this term is probably most usually applied to the mixing of the Scotch and Irish in the last three or four hundred years. Some apply the term to pure Scotch, who first came from Scotland and settled in Ireland, and later came to America without inter-marrying with the Irish at all.

During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries considerable numbers of people emigrated from Scotland to Ireland to escape oppression of various kinds, mostly religious persecution. These settled largely in the Eastern and Northern parts of Ireland. Many of them inter-married with the best element of the native Irish people. Because of exhorbitant taxation and religious persecution and oppressions in Ireland many thousand of the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians finally left Ireland and came to the American colonies seeking more freedom and religious toleration. At first they settled largely in Pennsylvania and Virginia, but later many families migrated to North and South Carolina. Most of the Steeles of America are Scotch-Irish, and most of these, as distinct families, came directly from Ireland. Some came from England and other European countries, but I think the most of them claim Scotland as their ancestral home.

During my genealogical researches I have corresponded with persons in about twenty states and in Ireland. I think I have collected about all of the historical data concerning my Steele ancestors that can be discovered. A few years ago much valuable material now lost might have been secured. The gathering of the historical and genealogical material contained in this book has been an arduous task, but I have been greatly interested in the work and count it a "labor of love." It is not my aim or expectation to make one dollar by the sale of this book. It is a contribution to systematic genealogy. Many friends have very kindly assisted me in gathering data, to all of whom I hereby return thanks. I would like to mention some of them, but I do not wish to seem partial.

EXPLANATION AND INFORMATION.

In a book containing the genealogy of a large family connection, the great majority of the persons can be mentioned by name only. It would require a large and costly volume to do otherwise. Books of this kind necessarily have a very limited sale, and a large book would cost several dollars each. Each picture and special pen sketch in this book has been paid for by some one, and have not added to the price of the book to those who simply buy the book. All pictures are of persons mentioned in the book. As a rule I have used the full legal form of a name instead of the family pet or abbreviated name. For instance, I have written "Martha" instead of "Mat" or "Mattie," "Margaret" instead of

"Peggy," or "Maggie," "Susan" instead of "Sue" or "Susie," "Mary" instead of "Polly" or "Mollie," "Eudora" instead of "Dora," "Sarah" instead of "Sallie," "Elizabeth" instead of "Bessie," "Bettie." or "Lizzie."

In this book a name in parenthesis usually means a woman's maiden surname. For instance: If John Jones married Miss Mary Steele, their names after marriage would probably be written John and Mary (Steele) Jones, or John Jones and Mary (Steele) Jones.

In the genealogical tables "b" stands for "born," "m" for "married," and "d" for "died."

Every name in the war chapter can be found in its proper place in the body of the book in the "family" mentioned after the name in the war chapter.

"Tradition," which is often used, means handed down orally, that is, from mouth to ear and not by written record. Of course there sometimes has been a record made of oral tradition.

In a work like this, it is practically impossible to avoid all errors. Be charitable about them. I used the names, dates and other information furnished me by others. Of course there will be errors in names and dates, and it may be your name or the date of your birth or marriage that I have gotten wrong. It may all be my fault, but it is possible that it is yours. I discovered and corrected many errors in the names and dates that were sent me. I believe the genealogy is the most complete one of its size ever published. I have given an exact account of every descendant of Captain Ninian Steele except, possibly, the immediate family of one man. (See Family 39.)

HOW TO FIND YOUR NAME OR TRACE YOUR FAMILY.

Examine the Index first; that may help you. If you don't find your name there look for the name of some prominent person closely related to you. Find that person and you can find your own name easily. If you know through which of the children of Ninian Steele, the First, you have descended, turn to Family No. 1 and trace out your line. The words "see family" after any name points forward to that person's own family. The words "see family" after the regular family number at the beginning of each family point back to the origin of that new family. A few moment's study will make it all plain to you.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

CAPTAIN NINIAN STEELE

DESCENDANTS.

In a previous book, "Archibald Steele and His Descendants," I gave the genealogy of my paternal family "lines." In this volume I shall deal mostly with my maternal ancestry.

It so happens that this, too, is a "Steele line," but the two lines do not spring from the same ancestor, so far as I have been able to ascertain.

Ninian Steele, my mother's grandfather, was born 24th December, 1738. I am not sure where he was born, but I think it was in Ireland. It is certain that he or his father came from Ireland to America. My opinion, after hearing all available evidence, is that, when quite small, he came from Ireland with his father and settled in Chester county, Pa. One old record says he was a native of that county. He grew to manhood there and removed to Iredell county, N. C., before the Revolutionary war, in which he was a patriot soldier. (See War chapter.)

On the 15th March, 1770, he married Miss Elizabeth Chambers, who was born 6th March, 1748. She was a daughter of Henry and Jane (Futhy) Chambers, of Lancaster (possibly Chester) county, Pa. Henry Chambers was born 13th July, 1708, and his wife in 1715. They were married 14th November, 1735. Henry Chambers and family moved to Iredell county, N. C., about 1754, where he died 26th October, 1783, and she 25th June, 1781.

Miss Anna Steele, who is eighty years old, now living at Hico, Texas, and who is a great-granddaughter of Henry Chambers, says that the latter's wife's maiden name was Jane Futhy.

Ninian Steele probably first met his future wife in Iredell county, N. C., where he and the Chambers family settled after moving from Pennsylvania.

It is not certainly known what Ninian Steele's father's given name was, but I think from the slight evidence I have found that it was Samuel, and that he had two brothers in North Carolina named Samuel and Robert, respectively.

"Ninian" is an old Scotch name, dating back to or beyond the sixth century. It was the name of a celebrated Christian missionary to the Picts and Scots of Scotland. It was often pronounced Nénian, and now it is sometimes spelled as thus pronounced.

Ninian Steele's mother was a Futhy, and Miss Anna Steele above mentioned says that she was a sister of the wife of Henry Chambers, thus making Ninian Steele and his wife first cousins. It is possible that she has confused Henry Chambers with his son, Henry Chambers, Jr.

Ninian Steele was a man of more than ordinary influence and enterprise in his community. It is positively claimed by his descendants in Iredell county, N. C., that he built and operated the first cotton gin ever known in that state. He built it after reading in a letter a description of the Whitney gin invented in 1793. It was situated on a fork of Fifth Creek near his home, ten miles from Statesville, and was run by water power. Parts of that first gin still exist.

Ninian Steele was known in his county as a "peace-maker." Tradition has it that he sometimes actually paid the amount of money in dispute between neighbors in order to stop a neighborhood broil. While he did not hesitate, as we believe, to act the soldier in war, he was emphatically a man of peace in times of peace. This was certainly an excellent trait of character—a noble heritage to leave his children.

It is much to be regretted that we know so little about him of whose character we have these few glimpses.

He died on 30th December, 1813; his wife having died 26th January, 1810. Both were buried in Statesville, Iredell county, N. C. (For further remarks see War chapter.)

This ends the Genealogical Department. There is one fractional Family (86½), and one omission (174), thus leaving 182 as the full number of families.

There is one given name in this Genealogy that occurs often, and is spelled several ways by those using it. It is Miles, Milas, Milus or Mily. I suppose Miles is the original and correct way of spelling it, and I have usually so spelled it, but Milus and Mily are more euphonious.

MILITARY CHAPTER.

THE STEELES IN WAR.

I will here briefly record the military history of Ninian Steele and his descendants in the Revolutionary War, and the great Civil War of 1861-5, and the Spanish-American War of 1898. The Steeles have always been quiet, peaceable citizens—the most of them leading the plain retired life of the farmer. They had no taste or training for war.

ROLL OF HONOR.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

CAPT. NINIAN STEELE.

So far as I have been able to find there are no official records that prove that Ninian Steele the First was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, but I hardly have a doubt that he was. Military records in the Carolinas were very imperfect during that war. Absence of official records of such matters is not positive proof that they are not history.

Ninian Steele was thirty-seven years old when the war began. He was a good citizen and an Irish Presbyterian, and thus it seems there was every reason to suppose that he would take an active part in the struggle for liberty.

FAMILY TRADITION.

I have a letter from a lady now eighty years old whose mother was an orphan girl reared in the family of Ninian Steele. This lady says that she has heard her mother say that Ninian Steele was a soldier in that war, and she used to hear her tell how afraid the wife and children of Ninian Steele sometimes were, while he was gone to the war, and the British and Tory troops were reported to be in the community. There was no man at home to protect them, and the terror of those terrible days and the nights of suspense deeply impressed their minds with the facts and the reasons for them.

Hence I think we may rightly claim that our paternal ancestor was a soldier in the Revolutionary War.

He was afterward called captain, but I have no evidence that he was a captain in that war. Perhaps he was, or he may have been a captain of a company of State militia after the war. The custom, so common now, of calling almost every man by some title did not prevail in those days. Hence, when a man was called captain or colonel then he usually was entitled to it in a military sense.

THOMAS HAMILTON.

Thomas Hamilton (See Family 151) was in the war of 1812, under General Jackson, and received a knife wound in the arm in a fight with the Indians. Nothing more known of his military history. He was born in North Carolina, and I suppose volunteered as a soldier from that State. He afterward lived in Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, dying in the latter State.

THE CIVIL WAR OF 1861-65.

During the great Civil War between the Southern and Northern States, 1861-65, twenty-four descendants of Ninian Steele were soldiers in the Confederate army, and so far as I know, not one in the army of the North. All of them lived in the South. There were fourteen Confederate soldiers who before or since that war, were directly connected with the Steele family by marriage. They are mentioned at the end of this chapter. I shall mention each one of both classes and give his company, regiment, and tell what office he held, if any, and whether he was captured, wounded, killed or died of disease while in the military service. Only brief mention will be made of most of them, because my information about them is limited. No effort was made to gather data concerning them until thirty-three years after the war closed, by which time many of the important actors who survived the war were dead.

While a people of peace and having no love for war, the Steeles were prompt to respond to the call of their several states to defend those States from what they believed to be an unjust invasion. They honestly believed in "State Rights," and acted on that belief. They fought to the end, but when they were whipped by overwhelming numbers and resources, they retired peaceably to their homes without any feeling of dishonor, and determined to be as industrious and as loyal citizens as they had been brave and sacrificing soldiers. In all of my investigations, I have not heard of one of them who, as a soldier, shirked his full duty or flinched from danger. I have arranged their names in alphabetical order. I have worked hard on this chapter, and have been very careful to get these records exactly correct, and I think I have them nearly so. They are not as full and exact as I desired, but I don't think I am blamable for that. Several gentlemen have done much to help me in this work, but others have remained deaf to my pleadings for information.

SOLDIERS OF THE CIVIL WAR.

(1) Carnes, William Minor (See Family 178), Private in Company C, Ninth Tennessee Regiment, Army of Tennessee. Joined the army when sixteen years old. Was in the battle of Shiloh. (The last two were brothers).

(5) Hargraves, Joseph Richard (See Family 115). Mustered into the Confederate service 19th Sept., 1861, at Inka, Miss. Company D (Capt. R. B. Allen), Twenty-third Mississippi Infantry (Col. Joe M. Wells). Was in all the battles in and around Fort Donelson, Tenn., in February, 1862, where he and thousands of others were captured 16th of that month. Was imprisoned in Camp Douglas, Chicago, Ill., where he died of pneumonia 27th May, 1862. A noble man and brave soldier. Enlisted from Kossuth, Tishomingo (now Alcorn) County, Miss.

(6) Holman, John James Andrews (See Family 15) was a Private in the Army of Missouri in the latter part of 1861 and the first half of 1862, first in Capt. John Pott's Company (B) Eleventh Regiment of Cavalry, and later in Capt. George Perry's Company of the First Regiment of Cavalry, both Regiments of the Eighth Division. On 20th July, 1862, he enlisted in the Confederate service, probably in the same organizations as last above named. Records show this last enlistment, but not his company or regiment. He was in the battle of Prairie Grove, Ark., and Lone Jack and Elkhorn Tavern, Mo. Was never wounded nor captured. Died in camp 4th December, 1862. Enlisted from Jasper County, Mo.

(7) Kirkland, Joseph Benjamin (See Family 87). Enlisted early in 1863 in a company called the "Hardeman Avengers," raised by Capt. J. J. Neely. Later he was transferred to Company E, Seventh Tennessee Cavalry (Col. Taylor), Rucker's Brigade, Forest's Cavalry. He was in several battles, among them being Brice's Cross Roads, Harrisburg, West Point—all in Mississippi, and Columbia, Tenn. Was never wounded nor captured. He was paroled 15th May, 1865, at Selma, Ala. Enlisted from Hardeman County, Tenn.

(8) Kirkland, Richard Henry (See Family 87). Volunteered 7th May, 1862, and was in Company F (Capt. Bell), Fourteenth Tennessee Regiment (Col. Green), Rucker's Brigade, Forest's Cavalry. Was in about fifteen battles and skirmishes. Was never wounded nor captured. Enlisted from Hardeman County, Tenn. Now living near Whiteville, that county and state.

(9) Kirkland, John William (See Family 87), was a soldier in the Civil War, but I cannot learn any particulars. Enlisted from Arkansas County., Ark., where he lived.

(The last three were brothers).

(10) Robison, William Cowan (See Number 3). Private in Company C, Forty-eighth North Carolina Infantry, Army of Northern Virginia. Was wounded seriously in battle, but died of pneumonia in Confederate hospital.

(11) Robison, James Franklin (See Family 11), enlisted 13th September, 1861, in Company B, Tenth Regiment Virginia Cavalry, W. H. F. Lee's Brigade, Army of Northern Virginia. Had three horses shot under him. Was in the following and other skirmishes and battles: Martinburg and Harper's Ferry, W. Va., Brandy Station, Gettysburg, Williams Port, and rode with J. E. B. Stewart on his famous ride through Maryland and Pennsylvania. In fights and siege of Petersburg, at Reaves Station and Five Forks, and the surrender at Appomatox 9th April, 1865. Enlisted from Rowan County, N. C. Now living near Salisbury, that state.

(12) Siddall, James (See Family 136). In Company B, 36th Arkansas Infantry, (Col. J. E. Glenn, commanding), Dandridge McRae's Brigade, Churchill's Division: Was in the following battles: Prairie Grove, Mo.; Helena and Jenkins' Ferry, Ark., and Pleasant Hill, La. He enlisted from White Co., Ark. Now living near Waxahachie Texas.

(13) Siddall, John Miles (See Family 136). But little is known as to the details of his war record. It is certain that he was in General Sterling Price's army on his last raid into Missouri (in 1864) during which he died of disease. It is thought that he was in Captain Lala's Company. He enlisted from White Co., Ark. "Peace to his ashes."

(The last two were brothers.]

(14) Steele, Dr. Henry Franklin (See Family 42). He was Captain of Company E, Thirty-third Arkansas Infantry, under Generals Hindeman and E. Kirby Smith, in the West Mississippi department. He was in the army from October, 1861, to the close of the war; was in the battles of Prairie Grove and Pleasant Hill, Ark. Served a time as Military Surgeon. Was never captured nor wounded. Enlisted from Clark county, Ark. Now dead.

(15) Steele, James Columbus (See Family 42), entered the Confederate service 7th June, 1861, in Company C, Fourth North Carolina Infantry. In the following month he was assigned to the regimental band as one of its musicians, in which he remained throughout the war. He was absent from the army only forty days during the war. He was not on the firing line, like a regular soldier, but in many battles and skirmishes was exposed to shot and shell, notably so in the battles of Seven Pines, Antietam and Gettysburg. His band sometimes were active on the field of battle as litter bearers, and otherwise attending the wounded. He was in the surrender at Appomottox, 9th April, 1865, and took part in the serenade his band gave General R. E. Lee, 11th April, and remembers that General Lee made a short responsive speech in appreciation of the music. He enlisted from Iredell county, N. C. Now living in Statesville, that county and State.

(16) Steele, Sinclair Preston (See Family 42). At the age of seventeen, in May, 1864, he joined Company A, of the Eighth Battalion North Carolina Junior Reserves, Infantry, which was afterward Company F. of Third Regiment, same troops. He was the Second Lieutenant of his Company, of which James Barnes Ellington, and later, W. G. Watson, Sr., were Captains. John W. Hinsdale was Colonel of his Regiment. Was in the battles of Fort Fisher, and Benton, North Carolina, and although his Company was captured at Fort Fisher, he and the two other lieutenants escaped under cover of darkness. Surrendered with Johnston, 26th April, 1865. Enlisted from Iredell county, N. C. Now dead.

(17) Steele, Milas Jackson (See Family 127). Private in Company I, Fourth Regiment Alabama Infantry, McLaws' Brigade, Hood's Division, Army of Northern Virginia. Entered the army early in 1861. Was in the battles of First Manassas, Seven Pines, and Gains' Mill. Slightly wounded at Manassas, and killed in the mill race at the battle of Gains' Mill, near Richmond, Virginia, 27th June, 1862. He was a brave and patriotic young man. Enlisted from Madison Co., Alabama.

(18) Steele, Jackson (See Family 58). In Company I, First Arkansas Mounted Rifles (Col. T. J. Churchill), Ben McCullah's Brigade. Was in several battles and many skirmishes, and was hit by bullets several times but never seriously wounded. The following are some of the battles he fought in: Elkhorn, Ark., Murfreesboro, Tenn., Jackson, Miss., (wounded); Chickamauga, Dry Gap, Resacca, (wounded), Kenesaw Mountain, (wounded), Atlanta, Jonesboro, and Lovejoy, Ga.; Decatur, Columbia, Franklin, Nashville, Tenn., and Bentonville, N. C. Surrendered to W. T. Sherman, in North Carolina, 26th April, 1865. Enlisted from Conway Co., Ark. Now living near Wooster, that County and State.

(19) Steele, Joseph Chambers (See Family 58), In Company A, Seventeenth Regiment Arkansas Infantry. Volunteered 7th October, 1861. In May, 1862, he was transferred to the Twenty-first Arkansas Infantry. He was in the battles of Iuka, Corinth, Port Gibson, Baker's Creek, Black River, and the siege of Vicksburg—all in Mississippi. Later he was in the First Arkansas Cavalry (Col. A. Gordon), with Gen. Sterling Price on his last great raid into Missouri in the Fall of 1864. Was captured first at Vicksburg, and second on the Missouri raid. After Vicksburg he was exchanged, but after the second capture he escaped. Surrendered finally at Jackson Port, Ark., June, 1865. Enlisted from Conway County, Ark. He is now County Judge of that County and lives near Plumerville, that County and State.

(20) Steele, Maj. Milas (See Family 58). At first he was captain of a company. and when a battalion was formed, of which his company became a part, he was elected Major of the battalion, which was known as Williamson's Arkansas Battalion. At Corinth, Miss., in May, 1862, his health failed so completely that he had to leave the army entirely. In 1864 he rejoined the army in Arkansas, under Gen. Sterling Price, and started with him on his last raid into Missouri, but again he was compelled, on account of sickness, to return home. He enlisted from Conway County, Ark. Now dead.

(The last three were brothers).

(21) Steele, Joseph Robert (See Family 122), entered the army as a private in Company D, Twenty-third Mississippi Infantry, and was mustered into the Confederate service 19th September, 1861, at Iuka, Miss. Was in the siege and all the battles of Fort Donelson in February, 1862, and was captured there on the 16th of that month and in prison at Camp Douglass, Chicago, Ill., for seven months, and exchanged in September, 1862. In the reorganization he was elected First Lieutenant of Company D. Was in the battle of Baker's Creek, Miss., on 16th May, 1862, and on account of severe illness he was taken prisoner next day on the retreat of the army from that position. That time he was a prisoner on Johnston's island, Lake Erie for twenty-one months. Was paroled in March, 1865, but the war closed before he could be exchanged. After the war he became a Cumberland Presbyterian minister. Asthma and bronchitis rendering him unable to preach he went to Florida, where he taught school for several years. Later he was Probate Judge of Sumter County, that State, for twelve successive years. He died 17th February, 1900, in Birmingham, Ala. He enlisted from Alcorn (then Tishomingo) County, Miss.

(22) Steele, Milus Jackson (See Family 122), went as one of the sixty-day troops to Bowling Green, Ky., December, 1861. At the end of that time, February, 1862, he enlisted in Company D, Thirty-second Mississippi Infantry. Enlisted before he was 18 years old. He was Second Sergeant and was in the battles of Perryville, Ky., Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Ringgold, Resaca, New Hope, Atlanta, and several smaller ones on the Sherman-Johnston Dalton-to-Atlanta campaign. He was slightly wounded at Perryville, 8th October, 1862, severely wounded at New Hope, Ga., 27th May, 1864, and mortally wounded at Franklin, Tenn., 30th November, 1865, while in the act of scaling the last breastworks of the enemy. He received three more wounds after he fell and he died of his wounds 10th December following, and is buried at Franklin. His comrades in arms give him high praise as a noble man and excellent soldier. Enlisted from Alcorn County, Miss.

(23) Steele, William Harvey (See Family 122), enlisted in Company H, Second Mississippi Cavalry, State troops, near close of war, when quite young. He became seriously ill after entering camp and was not able for service any more during the war. Infact, he never really recovered from that illness. After the war he became a minister in the Cumberland Presbyterian church. Died 19th ~~November~~, 1885, at Franklin, Tenn., on the hill where his brother (the preceding number) was mortally wounded twenty years before. Enlisted from what is now Alcorn County, Miss.

(The last three were brothers, and also brothers of the writer of this history.)

(24) Steele, Sinclair Ninian (See Family 175), enlisted as one of a Company of boys and men then organizing in his County. Because of the fact that very few men then remained at home, nearly all having already gone to the war, the County officials persuaded the members of this forming Company to remain at home for the protection of the women and children. There was a large number of negroes in that County, and it was thought best for some of the white men to stay at home. Mr. Steele afterwards served the Confederate Government by making gunpowder for it free of charge. He lives in Hale county, Ala.

The following fourteen soldiers of the war of 1861-'65 were not decendants of Capt. Ninian Steele, but married into the family, and doubtless their connection generally, and their descendants especially, will be glad to have their war records preserved in this family book:

(1) Altman, Bradford Henderson (See Family 166). First a private, then Sergeant, and finally Second Lieutenant. Enlisted in Capt. J. N. Cypert's Company, which became a part of F. W. Desha's Battalion and later, as Company K, was a part of the Eight Regiment, Arkansas Infantry, Cols. John H. Kelley and G. H. Bancum commanding the Regiment in succession. He fought in many battles, some of which were: Shiloh, Perryville, Murfreesboro and Chickamauga. He took an active part in the skirmishes and battles in the Sherman-Johnston campaign from Dalton to Atlanta, Ga., in 1864. Was seriously wounded in the battle of Peachtree Creek, near Atlanta, 22nd July 1864. Was captured later at Jonesboro, Ga., but exchanged in time to go with Hood in his ill-starred campaign into Tennessee. In the battle of Franklin he was very near his Division General, the brave and gallant Pat Cleburne, when the latter was killed on the enemy's breastworks. He served as Captain of his Company for awhile, and was a brave and faithful soldier. Enlisted from White County, Ark. Now dead.

(2) Banks, Rev. David Dickerson (See Family 142). In Company B (Capt. Jeff C. Johnston), Twenty-ninth Arkansas Infantry (Col. Pleasant). Was in the skirmish at Black Creek and battles of Helena, Prairie Grove and Jenkins' Ferry. Was never wounded nor captured. Enlisted in 1862 from White County, Ark., and served to close of war. He was transferred to Company E, Seventh Regiment Tennessee Cavalry (Col. Taylor), Rucker's Brigade, Forrest's Cavalry. He was in several battles and was paroled 15th May, 1865, at Selma, Ala. Enlisted from Hardeman County, Tenn. Now dead.

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR OF 1898.

In our war with Spain in 1898 there was no necessity for many soldiers from each State, and there were no real "defend the flag" or "fight for your firesides" arguments to stir the people to war. So far as I know only two of our large family were soldiers in that war. I name them below:

(1) Morton, Benjamin Alexander (See Family 76). In Company D, First Arkansas Infantry. Enlisted 23rd April, 1898, later transferred to Company C. Was mustered out as First Sergeant 25th October, 1898. Re-enlisted 18th January, 1899, in Company M, Sixth Regiment, U. S. Infantry, and went to the war in the Philippine Islands. Wounded 17th August, 1899 in battle on Island of Negros, in the hand which had to be amputated. Honorably discharged as Sergeant, 8th October, same year, at Bacolod, Philippine Islands, because loss of hand.

(2) Steele, Hugh Montgomery (See Family 80). Private in Battery E, Third Regiment of Artillery. Enlisted in San Francisco 25th June, 1898, to serve three years. Was in camp at Fort Point, Fort Mason, the Presidio and Alchitraz, all near San Francisco, Cal. Was never called into active service. After the war was over he was at his own request honorably discharged from the service.

(AUTOBIOGRAPHY.)

Laying aside editorial formality and "false modesty," I will write in the first person singular number. I am the fourth son of Mary Ann Steele and John Newton Steele (See Family 122) and was born on Thursday, 20th September, 1849, in Limestone County, Ala., two and a half miles southeast of what is now Elkmont, and seven miles north of Athens. Both of these towns are on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, from Nashville, Tenn., to Decatur, Ala. This road was built in 1858, and Elkmont came with the opening of this road, which was after we moved to Mississippi.

I was born in the house my grandfather, Robert Steele, built in August, 1818, and which is still standing.

I remember a few incidents only of my life in Alabama. One is that it was in one of the small perennial streams of Limestone County that I had my first experience in fishing with a real fish-book. I did not catch any fish, but I lost my hook. A large boy named Smith took it from me by superior "muscle." We called the stream I fished in the "Tanyard Branch" because it ran through father's tan-yard and supplied it with water. Father had taken me with him to the tan-yard that day and I suppose he gave me the hook to amuse myself with and incidentally to keep me out of his way while he worked.

Another Incident.—One day I went with "Elic," a colored boy who belonged to father and who was several years older than myself, to pick cotton near an old orchard. Some neighbor boys who came to get apples asked Elic my name, and he said it was "Pewter." The boys laughed and I felt cheap. Why he called me "Pewter" I do not know. Perhaps he thought I was too "soft" to be called Steel(e).

Again.—I was a very awkward boy and I tumbled out of wagons and off of horses every chance I got, and that was often. One day I fell out of a standing wagon and hurt my left arm badly. A day or two after my hurt and while my arm was still in a sling, Brother William and I went to a field where some men were plowing. I saw a black dog quite a distance away and he began barking at us vigorously. This scared me badly, and in order to get out of dog-danger we had to climb over a high rail fence. William got over quickly, but the top rail turned with me and I fell off backward—on the wrong side, of course. I was then worse scared than ever, but I got over that fence in short order. You see, that dog was still barking and I just had to get over the fence, and what a fellow has to do he usually does!

When safely on the other side of the fence I took time to look back through my tears and a crack of the fence, and saw the dog standing just where I first saw him. I don't suppose that he ever had the slightest intention of molesting us.

It is often so in life; we get scared by mere noise when there is but little, if any danger.

Not long after that I had another scare by a dog. I came suddenly upon a stray dog asleep in the orchard, and the way I made tracks down the narrow path through the tall weeds may be imagined. It was ludicrous then no doubt, and it may seem funny now, but at that particular time it was a serious affair with me. In my head-long run to escape the strange dog I fell full length in the path. I did not have to be told to get up, but I got up, and that in a hurry. I suppose the innocent dog slept on, perhaps dreaming of happy hunting days to come.

I was not more than four or five years old at that time and had not become as well acquainted with dogs as I did a few years later; had not made them my "bosom friends," so to speak.

Well, I fear that all of this seems rather silly to many of you, especially if you are so old that you have forgotten your "dog-days"—but I expect some "small boys" will read this book, and I know that boys like dog-tales, even poor ones like these.

These stories, however, are tame compared to those I could tell as having happened during the wonderful boy-and-dog times that "we boys" had in Mississippi with old Watch and Tige of blessed memory! We had great fun hunting rats, cats, rabbits, coons 'possums and squirrels, but I must not tell any more dog stories here. Those wanting more and richer stories of various kinds, please consult my new story book, "Our George and the Old Farm," which unfortunately has not yet been written.

In the autumn of 1854 we removed to Mississippi. Father's nephew, David Gibson Montgomery, went with us. I remember that mother, myself and my youngest brother, then the baby, rode in the old heavy family carriage. Father or cousin Gibson usually drove the carriage. One day we came near having a serious accident, caused by the carriage running backward down a hill. Young Montgomery saved us by catching the carriage with his shoulder, he being a young man of great physical strength. I distinctly remember crossing the Tennessee river at East Port and how I peered into the river hoping to see a fish.

We drove our "stock hogs" with us all the way to Mississippi, one hundred and thirty miles, and kept them up for several months. They were then turned out. Soon afterward two of the older hogs were missing. In a short time a letter came from the old home in Alabama stating that one of our hogs had just gotten back there. He was known by father's peculiar mark. A man bought the hog and sent father the money for him. This hog, after months of confinement, had found its way back, one hundred and thirty miles, to the old home in Alabama. He had to cross the Tennessee river on his way there. How he crossed the river and what became of his traveling companion are questions I cannot answer.

On reaching Mississippi we settled in what was then Tishomingo county. Father had bought the "David Cogsdell place," which was half a mile west of Tuscumbia river. Jacinto, sixteen miles away, was then the county town. Our postoffice was Kossuth, a small "cross-roads" town four miles west. Corinth, five miles east of us, was founded about the time we moved to the State. It soon became the chief trading point of the county, and after about 1868 was the capital of our county, which was then given the name of Alcorn. It was a part of old Tishomingo county, which had been subdivided. Corinth is at the crossing of the Memphis & Charleston and Mobile & Ohio railroads, both of which were built soon after we reached the State. I don't mean to intimate that we had any influence in founding the town of Corinth, or in building these railroads. A chronological coincidence only.

My boyhood days were in a general way about like those of many other sons of farmers. My father had a strong and abiding belief in work and much of it. He believed that work was good for boys and that boys were good for work, and he put this belief into real live practice. Hence, I and my four brothers had abundant opportunity for physical exercise. We did not need an artificial gymnasium like city boys now need and have. We were taught by personal experience to do all kinds of farm work. We cleared ground, dug ditches, split rails, made brick, built fences and "raised" houses. Building a house of logs was often called "house raising."

In addition to farming we had a small tan-yard and we learned the whole process of leather-making from beginning to finishing. On the farm we raised wheat, oats, potatoes, corn and cotton, and many kinds of fruits and vegetables. Father believed in raising on the farm everything we needed, and as a rule what we did not produce on the farm we did not have or use, except such things as sugar, coffee, salt, etc. I still believe that policy is a good one for the ordinary farmer to practice.

We boys did a great amount of hard work, but we had a corresponding amount of jolly good times and good health. I could write a book full of farm fun and frolic.

Father owned a dozen negro slaves, and among them were several boys: Elic, George, John, Scott and Jim. We five white boys and the five negro boys of almost corresponding ages worked and played side by side for years. Of course there were the sharp lines of distinction drawn in eating, drinking, sleeping, and in what is known as social life.

The negroes all understood these lines of distinction and never seemed to think of breaking over any of them, and as far as I remember never considered them hardships. They did not attend church with us, but were free to go to church. They were not sent to school, but most of them were taught to read. One of our negro boys, George, although not considered any too "bright" was pretty good at "figuring with his head." I remember that when I was quite small George used to give me lessons in "counting," as he called it. He was several years older than I. We "boys," white and black, had more fun at the expense of George than of all the others put together and for twenty years George has served as the "hero center" around which I have spun stories to amuse my own children.

In 1859 my father sold the "Cogsdell place," having fully determined to move to Texas or Arkansas. He went to those States that fall, traveling on horseback looking for a new home, and actually bargained for one in Hempstead County, Ark. He concluded to remain in Mississippi another year, as he could not get immediate possession of the place in Arkansas, even if the trade should be completed. He rented a place twelve miles south of our old home and near Rienzi, and we lived there during 1860. This was the year of the exciting presidential campaign which resulted in Lincoln's election and a division of the country and a foolish, terrible and fraticidal war. I was a boy of ten and remember distinctly about that election; but I do not remember so much about politics as I do about the great numbers of wild pigeons that flocked over the country. The air was often filled with them, thousands and hundreds of thousands being visible sometimes. All that Fall and winter (1859-60) the country literally swarmed with them. Where this innumerable multitude of pigeons came from I have never been able to ascertain, and why they left us and where they went is as mysterious as their coming.

The trade for the Arkansas farm fell through and father bought the "William Kerr" farm on "Prairie Branch," three miles north of Kossuth, and eight and one-half miles west of Corinth, Miss., to which we moved in the Autumn of 1860. This farm lies on both sides of the little creek called "Prairie Branch," which rises among the low hills a mile or two to the west. The land was very fertile, and a part of it was genuine original prairie lands, and we boys were proud of that. Again Kossuth became our postoffice town. It boasted of two stores, the postoffice, a school house, two churches, a blacksmith shop and a small plow foundry. Our nearest town (?) was "Boneyard" one mile west of our house. It consisted of a carding factory run by a "tread wheel," with two oxen as the motor power, a blacksmith shop, and a saddle and harness shop. In its palmy days it had had a store, but that was before the days of railroads.

I was at that time eleven years old. I had already attended the neighborhood "subscription schools" off and on since I was six or seven years old. There were no free schools in the South then, but I may add, parenthetically, that there were more high grade schools in the South at that time in proportion to population, than in any other portion of the United States. No such school for boys was then in our community, I am sorry to say.

My first school teacher at our new home was James L. McLean, who is now living in that neighborhood.

The next year the war came on, and my teacher and my elder brothers, Joseph Robert and Milus Jackson, joined the Confederate army. Then for four years we experienced the suspense, horrors and uncertainties of war.

First came the excitement of organizing, equipping and drilling the companies raised in our neighborhood, with all the confusion and interruptions to social, educational and business life involved. Next the massing of the Confederate army at Corinth early in 1862, and the great battle of Shiloh on the 5th and 6th of April, that year, which we heard distinctly. After that battle until the army left Corinth, the last of May, there was a vast amount of sickness among the Confederate soldiers, and almost every farm and village home for twelve miles west and south of Corinth, was a private hospital for sick soldiers. Our house was full of them for weeks. We boys enjoyed all that very much.

When the Confederate army left Corinth the Federal army of course became masters of that region.

Father took his negroes and nearly all of his horses and mules to South Alabama, where he kept them until near the close of the war. The Federal army took everything that was in sight, and much that was not in sight.

I distinctly remember the battle of Corinth on the 3d and 4th of October, 1862, when Van Dorn and Price tried by direct assault to retake the town, which was thoroughly fortified and garrisoned. Although eight miles from our home the terrible cannonading shook our house like an earthquake. One door was shaken open and the windows rattled as if the glass would be shaken out. There were Federal pickets in our orchard that day, and my mother, although very feeble, was forced to cook dinner for them, the soldiers riding through the gate right up to the door to make their demands. I had to take them their dinner. They were very nervous as the cannon at Corinth boomed and roared and I thoroughly enjoyed their trepidation. They were unnecessarily alarmed however for the Confederates were repulsed, and for us times were darker than ever.

How our mother and her five children lived through that dark period it would be hard to tell. We had some bacon hid away in the attic and we made meal by rubbing ears of corn on a coarse grater which was made of an old piece of tin by punching holes through it with a nail. As I now remember we boys were not much troubled in mind or body. Cares sit lightly on the shoulders of youth.

During the war I went to school at different times to two lady teachers. Right here I will give in chronological order as best I can remember the names of all the teachers to whom I went to school; Mr. Buchanan, Rev. F. M. Moses, Lemuel Murdaugh, William H. Cogsdell, Hartwell Briggs, Mrs. Smith, James L. McEean, Miss Marietta Hill, Miss Mary Porter, Elijah T. Nicholson and Mr. Johnston.

I had my full share of innocent school-boy fun, and I fear that I loved to play marbles, fox-and-hounds, "bull-pen" and town-ball, better than to study. I was just an ordinary rough-and-tumble school-boy with a good many angularities of body and disposition, but somehow I never gave my teachers much trouble and never got a straight-out whipping at school in my life. I don't remember that any of my teachers ever complimented me but once and that was when one of them told my father that he always dreaded to see me coming to him with a problem in arithmetic, for he knew by experience that it probably would be a difficult one that I would bring him to solve.

When finally the black, desolating cloud of war rolled away we found ourselves all alive and at home again—all except one. My second brother, Milus Jackson, the favorite of the family, had fallen mortally wounded on the battlefield of Franklin, Tenn., 30th Nov., 1864, while in the act of leaping over the parapet of the enemy's last line of works. We missed him long and sorely. With the vivid imagination and strong hope of youth I could not for years rid myself of the thought that he would come home some day, although I knew that was impossible. Today my eyes fill with tears as I write of those dark times and terrible experiences thirty-five years ago, and especially of his sad fate.

Coming back to the farm again, we went to work with renewed energy to repair our "broken fortunes," and to try to be and do something in the world. We rebuilt the burnt and neglected fences, reopened the old ditches and dug new ones, and soon had the old farm in pretty good condition again.

I made a full hand on the farm from the time I was six years old until I was twenty-one, and I never missed but one full summer's work in all that time. After the war, just as before it, I went to school during the winter, and sometimes after crops were "laid by," and one year I went all summer, which was something unusual on our farm. I never attended a literary college. Father offered to give me a complete college course, but as my health at that time was much impaired, I thought it best not to go away from home to school. He managed to send all of his other children to college. I now think that I made a mistake in declining to go, even under the circumstances. I have tried to make amends for this lack of college training by "picking up" all the education I could along the wayside of a busy life.

When, as a boy eight years old, I "ran up against" the multiplication table, I thought it was the greatest problem that I would meet in life. But I soon mastered that. I remember distinctly that when I had mastered the multiplication table a new problem more serious than it at once confronted me, and that was the problem of personal religion. I made more or less serious attempts all along through my youth to be religious, and to "get religion," as expressed in those days. At a great "revival" of religion, conducted by a Methodist circuit rider, Rev. Jas. W. Honnoll, at old Pleasant Valley Church, I made a public profession of religion. That was on the night of the 24th of September, 1867, and on the 13th of October following, I and my brothers, Joseph Robert, and William Harvey, united with the Shiloh congregation of the C. P. Church, Rev. Robert B. Wear, minister in charge. The church house was in one quarter of a mile of our home.

On the 20th of September, 1870, the day I was twenty-one, I began to "read medicine" in the office of Dr. J. M. Taylor, of Corinth, the most accomplished physician in that part of the State.

During the winter of 1871-2, I attended the medical department of the University of Louisville, at Louisville, Ky. The next summer (1872) I continued my studies with Dr. Taylor, and that winter I attended "lectures" at the medical department of the University of Nashville, at Nashville, Tenn., from which school I graduated the 26th of February, 1873. I may be pardoned for saying that I had the good fortuue of winning more prizes than any other member of my class, and stood the highest in my class on surgery. The next month, March, I opened an office in my father's house on the old farm, and at once began to get a good share of the neighborhood practice.

I rather wanted to go to Memphis, Tenn., but father and mother were then alone. All the other children were away from home, some of them being at school, and they very much desired me to remain at home with them. I concluded to do so, at least to remain near them for a time.

On the 15th of July, 1873, I moved my office to Kossuth, our little postoffice town. There I boarded with old Mr. William C. Simmons. I had a good patronage and was fairly successful.

I concluded that if I must remain there indefinitely and practice medicine, it would not be well to live alone, so on the 23rd Feb., 1875, I married Miss Frances Ellen Jones, a daughter of John and Mary Ann (Dilworth) Jones who lived just two miles south of Kossuth. She was just twenty years old, and was a beautiful, lovely and popular young lady.

An experience of twenty-five years has proven that I was fortunate in choosing a wife, for, increasingly as the years have gone by, she has by her kindly spirit, patience and unselfishness, and by her untiring, loving interest in our home-life, proven her sterling worth as woman, wife and mother. We were married by her pastor, Rev. Daniel W. Babb, a minister of the M. E. Church, South.

I did well enough at Kossuth but I wanted to do better, which is always praiseworthy. Seeking to carry out this purpose I, on the 13th of May, 1880, moved to Corinth, same county, and very soon entered on a good practice, having fortunately stepped into the professional shoes of a physician and friend who gave up his practice there on account of his health.

Up to this time my wife had remained a member of the Methodist church, but at Corinth we both joined the C. P. church and I was at once elected ruling elder in that congregation, and entered actively into church and Sunday school work.

I had always been a total abstainer from intoxicants and a temperance advocate, and for years I had been a prohibitionist. At Corinth, circumstances and my natural inclination soon pushed me willingly forward as a leader in a red-hot anti-saloon fight, which resulted, in 1884, in putting every saloon out of the town never to return. At least, Corinth has never had a saloon since and it is one of the most prosperous towns in that State. Prohibition did not kill Corinth.

I had an excellent and pleasant practice at Corinth and a large circle of devoted friends, but I was never quite satisfied with the general practice of medicine.

For years I had had a liking for Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat work. In April 1886, I went to London, England, to study these specialties, starting April 12th and reaching London the 26th of that month. I studied in the Royal Ophthalmic Hospital and in the Golden Square Throat Hospital. On returning home I decided to abandon the general practice, and also that it would suit me better to practice my specialties in a larger place than Corinth. On the 27th of October, that year, (1886), I removed to Chattanooga, Tenn., where I have lived ever since. In Chattanooga I have enjoyed an excellent and increasing patronage.

I am a member of the Chattanooga Medical Society, the Tennessee State Medical Society, and the American Medical Association.

In 1889 I was elected to a chair in the Chattanooga Medical College, and now am Professor of Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat in that school, and am also Ophthalmologist to the Baroness Erlanger Hospital of this city.

In 1886, soon after reaching Chattanooga, my wife, myself and daughter, joined by letter, the Cumberland Presbyterian church in this city, of which I was elected a ruling elder about the time I became a member. I have had the honor of being the Superintendent of its Sunday school several years at different times, and for four years the President of the Chattanooga Young Men's Christian Association. My regret is that I have not been a more progressive physician, useful citizen, and active Christian.

We have one daughter, Mary Irene, who is the wife of William Dupree Carswell, a lawyer of this city. They have one child, Edward Steele, born 2nd January, 1899.

Our only son is Willard Hugo, born 11th December, 1884. He is named Willard for Miss Frances E. Willard, the greatest temperance and general reform leader of the nineteenth century.

I have written this little sketch partly through personal vanity, partly for the benefit of the readers of this book who may wish to know more of me, and partly for the pleasure it may give to my posterity in the years to come.

(The foregoing autobiography is copied from a book published last year, and the date of it was my ~~fiftieth~~ birth-day. It is re-published here for the reasons given in the last paragraph, and also because the printer thought it was needed to relieve the "thinness" of this volume. The preceding and the following personal sketches are paid for by those directly interested, hence the other subscribers are not taxed with the cost.)

REV. ISAAC DONNELL STEELE.

Rev. Isaac Donnell Steele is the fifth and youngest son of Mary Ann Steele, and Maj. John Newton Steele. (See Family 122) He was born 26th Oct., 1852, near Elkmont, Limestone county, Alabama. When two years old he went with his father's family to Alcorn county, Mississippi.

He grew up on the farm as did his brothers, and with them shared the arduous labors of real old-time farm-life. He got as much wholesome fun and healthful enjoyment out of his life on the farm as any of us and perhaps a little more. He was a natural mimic and had full scope on the farm for the exercise of that talent.

When just a stripling of a boy he showed unusual talent as a public speaker. He and I used to attend the old fashioned debating societies held in the old log school houses in our community, and I remember distinctly that some of our neighbors were surprised that "Donnell Steele could speak so well." Other speakers may have shown more logic, history, or philosophy in their speeches than he, but what he said was told with such earnestness, confidence and torrential eloquence for a boy that it had great effect on his hearers.

He attended the common subscription schools of the community before and after the war.

He publicly professed religion during a Methodist revival meeting held at old Pleasant Valley Church, near Kossuth, Alcorn County, Miss., in September, 1867, and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian church, the next year.

He was a student in the University of Mississippi in the winter of 1872-3. In September, 1873, he entered Cooper Institute near Meridian, Mississippi, and remained in that school until June, 1877, except one year which was spent on the farm. He took the degree of B. S. at Cooper Institute in 1877, and A. B. in 1878. That school conferred on him the degree of A. M. in 1880.

He joined Bell Presbytery, Mississippi Synod of the Cumberland Presbyterian denomination 4th of September, 1875, having become fully and clearly impressed that it was his duty to become a minister of the Gospel. He preached his first sermon 4th October, 1875, and transferred his Presby-terial membership to New Hope Presbytery of the Mississippi Synod, in November of that year. In July, 1876, he was licensed to preach by the New Hope Presbytery, and by the same Presbytery ordained to the full work of the ministry on the 7th of November, 1877.

He entered the Theological Seminary at Lebanon, Tenn., in September, 1878, and was graduated B. D. from that institution in June, 1880.

He has been pastor of Cumberland Presbyterian churches in the following places: Greeneville, Tenn., Corinth, Miss., Jackson, Tenn., and the First Church of Nashville, Tenn., and is now pastor of the First Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Birmingham, Ala. He is a pleasing popular and effective speaker and a successful pastor.

For several years he was president of the Board of Education of his denomination.

He has been a member of several General Assemblies of his church, and was a delegate to the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance at its meeting in London, England, in 1888. While abroad he visited Paris and Rome, thus gratifying a long cherished desire.

He has written a number of excellent articles for religious journals, and his brochure on the Book of Daniel is a clear, logical and strong argument from the usual orthodox standpoint as to its authenticity and date of composition.

On December 19th, 1883, he was married to Miss Anna Borah, daughter of Rev, J. T. Borah, of Mississippi. Mr. Borah was a minister in the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

His wife is woman of liberal education and varied accomplishments, and has marked literary tastes and ability.

They have no living children, their only children (two sons) having died in early infancy.

ARCHIBALD STEELE OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

In a genealogical volume published last year (1900) entitled "Archibald Steele and His Descendants," I gave the history of Archibald Steele and the genealogy of his descendants. He was my paternal great-grand-father.

Archibald Steele was born in Scotland or England about 1728. He went to Ireland and there married a woman of Scotch ancestry whose name was probably Agnes Edwards. She was born in Dublin Ireland 1720. They came to America in 1766, settling first in Lancaster county, Pa., and finally (1772) on Fishing Creek, York county, South Carolina.

They had five children, all sons, whose names were John, Joseph, William, James, and Robert. Four of them were soldiers under General Francis Marion in the Revolutionary War, Joseph being the captain of a company. Robert was refused enlistment as a soldier, and sent home, on account of his youth, being then only fourteen years old. I will mention each separately.

(1) John, b. about 1758, in Ireland; d. 1808, in York County, S. C. His seven children were: Archibald, Robert, William, John, Hugh, James, and Jane.

(2) Captain Joseph, b. about 1760, in Ireland; d. 28th August, 1795, in York County, S. C.; married Rebecca Anderson. Their six children were: John, William, Archibald, Samuel, Jane, and Alexander.

(3) William, b. about 1762, in Ireland; d. 20th Nov., 1806, in York County, S. C. He married Margaret Johnston, and their two children were Joseph, and Samuel Johnston.

(4) James, b. about 1865, probably in Ireland, but possibly in America; d. 6th October, 1811, in York County, S. C. He married Mary Workman, and their four chlldren were: Joseph, Lavinia, Annie, and Margaret.

(5) Robert, b. 7th Sept., 1767, in Lancaster County, Pa.; moved to York County, S. C,, in 1772, and to Limestone Co., Ala., in 1817, where he died 9th Jan., 1852, and is buried in the old New Garden Church Cemetery, near Elkmont, that County. In York County, S. C., he married, 1796, Miss Martha Starr, who was born 6th March, 1773, and died 20th Sept., 1854. Their seven children were: Mary, Rev. Archibald Jackson, Dorcas, Martha Stuart, John Newton, and Anna Jane.

John Newton, son of Robert Steele, married Miss Mary Ann Steele, who is number 255 in this book. They were the parents of the writer of this book. (See Family 122).

INDEX.

(Every name in this book is not in this index. The object of the Index is simply to aid you in quickly finding your name in the Genealogical Chapter. I have not aimed to ignore or neglect anyone. Nearly all heads of families are indexed. If your name is not in the Index, you can find that of your father, mother, husband, wife, brother, sister, father-in-law or mother-in-law, and near one of these your name will be found in in its proper place in the Genealogy.
